ENDACOTT: You know Red was telling me about how the guys used to steal chickens and roast them on shovels and stuff like that up there. Were you in that bunch?

MCDONNELL: No, but I was in a bunch that use to—

ENDACOTT: Steal ice cream?

MCDONNELL: —catch crawdads and boil them in a can, one of these big cans like they burn trash in, down by the river. We used to throw 50, 60 live crawdads into a hot can of some kind and set all this trash on fire in this darned thing. It'd cook these crawdads and then we'd snap the tails off and eat them.
