

From: The Abilene Weekly Chronicle
Friday, Dec. 30, 1881
p. 5, col. 2

On last Saturday a ten year-old son of Jacob Brown, living seven and one-half miles northeast of town, got his right elbow caught in the cogs of a cornsheller. A compound comminuted fracture was sustained. On Monday, it being thought necessary, Dr. A. Crowley, of Salina, and Dr. A.S. Gish, of this city, amputated the arm. At this writing the boy is getting along as well as could be expected. We hope for the little fellow's speedy recovery.

Courtesy of Dickinson County Heritage Center