

The Launching

The "Nautilus" slipped down her launching ways and into the waters of the Thames at exactly 10:57 a. m.

Minutes before, as though it were a symbol, brilliant sunshine had suddenly broken through and dispelled a heavy fog which, since early morning, had shrouded the shipyard.

