

PROPAGANDA, INFORMATION AND PSYCHOLOGICAL WARFARE: COLD WAR AND HOT

A List of Holdings
Dwight D. Eisenhower Presidential Library

Who's handling public relations for you behind the Iron Curtain?

It's not an easy assignment—or the kind you'll find many people volunteering for.

But there is an important "public relations" job to be done behind the Iron Curtain—for you . . . for America . . . for the whole concept of freedom, free enterprise and individual rights. This job is an opportunity and a challenge as well as a serious responsibility for American business. Fortunately, with your help, there is an agency that can do the job—Crusade for Freedom, which supports Radio Free Europe and Free Europe Press.

Both these powerful, privately operated organizations continually challenge the barrage of Communist misstatements and false truths. Using saturation radio broadcasts and mass newspaper drops from message balloons, Radio Free Europe and Free Europe Press are constantly on the offensive against the Red campaign to annihilate right, reason and national pride.

Continued and heated Communist protests testify to the tremendous effectiveness of Radio Free Europe and Free Europe Press. Support freely given by free American business and private citizens will increase this effectiveness and the scope of their operations. A contribution now is perhaps the best investment you can make towards a peaceful, prosperous world.

Give generously. It's your future!

INTRODUCTION

Such terms as “information,” “political warfare,” “propaganda,” “psychological strategy,” and “psychological warfare” are frequently used, often interchangeably, but are difficult to define. In preparing this guide, the Library staff recognizing this difficulty, have, therefore, interpreted the meanings of these related words broadly to cover actions, activities, symbols, thoughts, beliefs and media aimed at influencing public opinion at home and abroad. Efforts to “win the hearts and minds” of people have been attempted through many means including such conventional methods as radio and television broadcasts, public speeches, leaflets, newspapers, and the like. In addition, these efforts have covered such things as trade fairs, cultural diplomacy (a term which may itself mean different things to different people), the People-to-People program as well as actions of governments themselves and developments within countries. For example, efforts to restore and protect civil rights for minority groups within the United States certainly had and continue to have an impact on opinion at home and abroad. Wide use of labels such as “Free World,” is, itself, a form of propaganda intended to influence particular audiences. One of the best known “psychological warriors,” C.D. Jackson, pointed out that psychological warfare (or any of its related terms) cannot be separated from the actions of the sponsoring entity (in Jackson’s case and in most instances listed herein, the United States Government). Instead, each policy implemented or action taken by the government has an impact on national and/or international opinion.

This guide includes a select bibliography of works which address various aspects of information (or propaganda). Users are urged to consult these and other studies of the subject to gain a better understanding of information and propaganda activities. Please also note that given the nature of the subject matter covered by this guide, it is highly unlikely that all possible sources of documentation in the Library’s holdings on this topic are cited herein. Therefore, the guide should be considered as a supplement to, rather than a replacement for, finding aids to the Library’s 530-plus manuscript collections.

Jackson, C.D.: Papers, 1931-1967. C.D. Jackson, a publishing executive in Henry Luce's Time, Incorporated publishing company, was a practitioner of psychological warfare during World War II and in the cold war years which followed. His early propaganda work involved running the Council For Democracy, an organization aimed at warning the American people of the threats posed by such ideologies as communism and Nazism. He served in General Eisenhower's combined operational headquarters, AFHQ and SHAEF as a civilian employee of OWI and a deputy director dealing with psychological warfare matters. During the late 1940s Jackson helped establish and run the Free Europe Committee and its organ, Radio Free Europe and during the 1950s served President Eisenhower as a Special Assistant for Cold War Planning with his focus on international information and psychological warfare matters. His papers constitute one of the most important sources of information on propaganda and psychological warfare in the Library's holdings. The first 20 or so boxes pertain primarily to Jackson's duties in World War II while the remainder of the collection contains extensive files on the Council For Democracy, the Free Europe Committee or National Committee For a Free Europe as it was formerly called, and on Jackson's work in the Eisenhower Administration as a Presidential advisor. The files listed below are selective and users are urged to consult the finding aid to the Jackson Papers for a complete list of file folders.

Lilly, Edward, Papers, 1928-1992. Edward Lilly, a professor of history at Loyola University in Chicago and then at the Catholic University of American became the designated historian for the Office of War Information (OWI) in 1944. In this capacity, Lilly began writing the agency's history while collecting documentation from OWI's domestic and overseas bureaus. Consequently, he accumulated several thousand pages of correspondence, memoranda, messages and reports documenting the Office of War Information's activities around the world during World War II. Consequently, the Lilly Papers constitute a source of documentation on World War II psychological warfare which is global in scope with considerable materials on the Southwest Pacific, Japan, the Philippines, Southeast Asia and China as well as extensive files on North Africa, Europe and the Middle East.

After the end of World War II Lilly served as a consultant to the Joint Chiefs of Staff and continued to write histories (unpublished) of United States psychological warfare programs. He collected a file on the Unconditional Surrender policy imposed upon the Axis Powers by the Allies in World War II. In 1951 he became a member of the National Security Council staff and served on both the Psychological Strategy Board and its successor, the Operations Coordinating Board. He remained with the NSC until 1965. He focused on doctrinal and ideological issues while writing histories of the PSB and OCB and collection much documentation on these interagency boards which functioned within the machinery of the National Security Council.

Edward Lilly's Papers constitute a highly significant source of information on psychological warfare during both the hot war of WWII and the Cold War. Even a limited amount of information on World War I can be found in this collection. The Lilly Papers along with the Jackson Papers greatly enhance the Eisenhower Library as a research center for studying propaganda in cold war and in hot. The list of file folders below is selective; therefore users should consult the finding aid to the Lilly Papers for a complete list of pertinent file folders

U.S. President's Committee on Information Activities Abroad (Sprague Committee): Records, 1959-61. This committee, appointed by the President in 1959 reviewed the implantation of recommendations of the Committee on International Information Activities (Jackson Committee) established in 1953. (See entry for the Jackson Committee for a description.) The Sprague Committee apparently covered a broader range of informational activities than did its predecessor, the Jackson Committee; consequently its documentation is more extensive and more diverse than that of the Jackson Committee. The entire body of records is pertinent to studies of information and propaganda so the following list of folders is selective. Copies of certain papers produced by the Sprague Committee can be also found in the NSC Registry Series, NSC Staff Papers (description below for that series and collection).
