JACKSON: And, Dwight, you'd hear him coming two blocks away, whistling and singing. So he was the one that gave me such a pleasant visit when we were there.

Oh, he just made things so interesting. I remember he hitched up the horses one morning to the buggy and Aunt Ida said, "Where you going?"

He said, "Oh, I just thought I'd take Nettie and show her around the town—go out to Mud Creek" where they swam and I think they skated out there too.

Historical Note: Nettie Stover Jackson was niece to Ida Eisenhower and first cousin to Dwight D. Eisenhower.
